School-Based Mental Health Services

What is Headway?

Headway is a non-profit agency that transforms lives by providing hope, healing, and empowerment to thousands of children and families each year. Headway has offices in Richfield, Golden Valley, several area school districts, and a day treatment facility in Hopkins.

What school-based services are available?

Headway school-based services offer convenient outpatient therapy services. We help children and families to achieve lasting results and skills for life by directly addressing school success, truancy, and mental health and substance use issues through support, advocacy and case management.

Headway's on-site staff is readily available to students, their families, school faculty and staff who might need to refer a student in emotional distress. Through assessment and treatment, plans are created to identify and eliminate issues that interfere with optimal functioning. This can help a struggling child deal with concerns as they arise, and can lead to marked improvements in attendance, behavior and academic success.

Headway school-based therapists are also able to make referrals to other Headway services such as:

- Psychological testing
- County case management services
- Day treatment
- Psychiatry

We can help!

If Headway does not offer a service your family may need, our school-based therapists can help you find a place in your community to meet your needs. Our objective is to help people connect with services that can help make their lives better.
